EAT SINGAPORE

Who could say no to a great dining deal at some of the best restaurants in town? Look out for the recently released, Eat Singapore – a magical, little red book, written by Bethany Chuah, that grants its owner access to a host of dining privileges at 12 great restaurants around the city centre, including discounts or a complimentary main course when dining in a party of two (minimum order of two main courses).

Printed on its pages is a diverse range of some of Singapore's top spots, including: Bincho, Bochinche, El Mero Mero, Kilo, Long Chim, Luxe, Mitzo, Oso, Saha, Tburu and The Black Swan. Flick through and you will find plenty of information about each, complete with handy tips on recommended dishes, serving hours and of course, contact details to help you make your booking even easier.

Publisher Karin van Vliet (who personally curated many of the restaurants involved) explains, "the common theme is good food, good service and great ambiance. These are the three things we focus on, so diners are guaranteed a great night out."

With a selection including the new, the hidden and the well established, diners are guaranteed a varied gastronomic experience as they work from cover to cover. "We wanted it to be more like a friend's recommendation than a tourist guide, and hope that diners will trust our personal selection."

The Eat Singapore book will be an annual publication and there is no limit on the number of books you purchase throughout the year (each offer is only valid once per book and only one book can be used for only one pair of diners at a time). All you have to do is ring up the restaurant to make a reservation and simply let them know you would like to use the Eat Singapore book.

The Eat Singapore book can be purchased at the participating restaurants as well as the Eat Singapore website.

GINNED UP IN CHINATOWN

Oxwell & Co, on Ann Siang Hill, have hopped on the trend bandwagon and opened their very own rooftop bar with an undeniably hipster spin. The intimate space will add a fourth dimension to their already existing hat-trick of eating, drinking and private dining experiences on each of its lower floors. Expect Hendrick's Gin galore as the menu was designed exclusively with the popular spirit, offering creations like Clover Club Street, crafted using the herbs and botanicals from Oxwell & Co's very own herb garden!

WORLD GOURMET SUMMIT RETURNS

One of the most highly anticipated foodie events in Singapore's annual calendar, the World Gourmet Summit 2016 has confirmed its event dates for March 28 to April 14, 2016. To mark its 20th anniversary, the summit promises to be nothing less than spectacular, as renowned chefs from Singapore and the world's leading restaurants showcase their culinary prowess through a series of crafted dinners, masterclasses and workshops. This year's edition will also see the world's highest 'Gourmet Jam Session', set to take place at none other than buzzing nightlife spot, 1-Altitude. Of course, the World Gourmet Summit will also host their annual Awards of Excellence (with three new categories – Chef's Choice Award (Asian), Chef's Choice Award (Western) and Apprentice Chef of the Year Award) as well as the NKF Charity Gala Dinner.
